Interpretation of Site	The area appears to have been used as a popular swimming and recreation area. The foundation pad appears consistent with 1930s structures previously examined. A partially collapsed seawall dating from the 1960s still stands on the western side of Moorpanyal Park, along with an access path.

History

A small Pavilion and costume changing building stood in this area during the 1920s-30s and was called the North Shore Baths. The seawall to the west of the baths pad was installed in the 1960s by the council (Dale Jennings, pers comms).

This place/object may be included in the Victorian Heritage Register pursuant to the Heritage Act 2017. Check the Victorian Heritage Database, selecting 'Heritage Victoria' as the place source.
