Statement of Significance

Last updated on - July 5, 2000

This 1920s clinker brick residence in its garden setting, built as the home of Mrs Harriet Horden and her grandson, Cedric (now Louise), has high local historical as the first brick house built in Mount Evelyn at a time when the district was becoming a popular bush holiday destination. It is of architectural significance as an unusual and well-detailed example of the application of the Arts and Crafts style to a residence.

Physical Description 1

Dalmeny is a fine example of an Arts and Crafts residence, set within a mature garden. The house is constructed of clinker bricks. The design is striking and its is finely detailed. The main facade is dominated by a centrally placed front porch and the strong vertical elements created by the exposed sides of two chimneys which project through the gable. Curved brackets on the porch and large eave brackets at the ends of the gable are also strong elements. The windows are double-hung sashes with a six-paned upper sash. There is an enclosed verandah on the side facing Johns Crescent. There are skillion-roofed extensions on the rear of the house. The garage appears to be of a similar period to the house.

The garden contains many mature exotic trees. Stonewalling is used throughout. The entrance from Johns Crescent is a feature.
