Heritage Inventory History of Site:

HANLON No. 2 Shaft,

21.06.1901: mine is opening up in an excellent manner and the gold returns of the last few weeks place beyond doubt that there is gold in this mine.

28.06.1901: continues to obtain good gold and it is rumoured that the mine will be let on tribute.

02.08.1901: tribute party to sink in the north-east of this claim.

20.09.1901: this mine is not looking too bright.

1897 to 12.1903: recorded production of 18,681 ozs 10 dwt (or 577.963 kg). operated with a steam plant and puddler; the shaft at this mine was twisted by the drift as it was being sunk; a long drive north failed to find the lead, the English capital funding this mine ran out and the mine was let on tribute; the tibuters drove west and found gold on the west side of the creek; however the tribute lapsed and the company was unable to raise more money and the mine closed.
