Physical Description 1

The Wesleyan Methodist Church was constructed. In 1866, to the design of Ballarat architect, J A Doane. The builder was Richard Rennie, who was noted for the construction of several of Buninyong's principal buildings. The Sunday School hall followed in 1870. The Church and Hall are now used for a private residence.

The Church is constructed of brick with a slate roof. The plan comprises simple rectangular buttressed hall. Buttresses to the street facade are completed with decorative spires, and the windows are arch-headed.

The Sunday School Hall has been inappropriately clad with shingles.
