Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

Considered to have regional significance due to the continuing association with one of the earliest waves of German migration to Port Phillip district and relationship with Westgarthtown.

Interpretation of Site	REMAINS OF FARMHOUSE OF ZIMMER FAMILY WHO CONTINUOUSLY OCCUPIED THE FARM FOR APPROX 119 YEARS. THE STONE WALLS ENCLOSE THE BOUNDARIES OF THE FARM AND THE WATER TROUGHS ILLUSTRATE ADAPTATION AND INNOVATION IN FARMING.
Archaeological Significance	The site is a rare example of German settlement during the 1850s. There is potential for intact domestic deposits and structural remains relating to this early occupation, demonstrating farming and domestic practices.
Historical Significance	Local significance to the mid 19th century settlement of German migrants to the Epping area.
