Significance of Individual Property

One of a few substantial, late Victorian era brick houses which represent the first major period of development in the precinct. The two storey house is intact externally and is distinguished by the combination of original decorative elements to the facade.

There are also associations with the original owner, John Maling, who was an eminent local councillor and Mayor.

The Balwyn Road Residential Precinct is of historic significance because the pattern of development reflects that of Boroondara generally. In much of Boroondara one or two periods might be represented in any one precinct, however in the Balwyn Road Residential Precinct all periods are nearly equally represented. As such, the precinct is a microcosm of the broad sweep of development across the City. The relative consistency in the allotment width and/or size across the different phases of development serves to unify the precinct.

There are historical associations with several eminent families (Danks, Goldings, Marfleets, McAlpins, etc). Of further interest is the profile that some residents have had at a broader level (either State, national or international) and the manifold connections between various residents within the precinct and the City of Boroondara.

The Balwyn Road Residential Precinct is of aesthetic significance for the many high quality buildings, some of which are of individual significance at the broader level, and others that are generally good examples of their architectural style. The buildings are remarkably intact to their period of construction and have been well maintained. There has been limited change of building stock. A high proportion of the buildings have been architect designed. Although there are a range of styles evident, there is a consistency in scale and setbacks.

The extensive and well maintained landscaping both to the street (with trees and wide reservations) and the private gardens provides a level of cohesion. One of the gardens (no. 17) is a rare example of a late nineteenth century intact suburban garden. In addition, some of the early road and paving infrastructure is intact.

Physical Description 1

The bi-chrome brick, two storey Italianate house has contrasting white painted rendered elements - quoining, cornice, and string course. There are decorative elements to the cornice and string course such as rosettes and a serpentine floral pattern. There is cast iron detailing to the offset verandah and balcony as well as to the balconettes to the first floor windows of the projecting bay.
