Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

An unpretentious, early brick cottage built in c1895, which is said to be oldest brick house in Croydon and set in a mature garden. It is historically significant locally as pioneering to this locality of this type and architecturally as a rare surviving example of this domestic type, relatively intact in its setting.

Physical Description 1

A double-fronted unpretentious symmetrical early brick cottage with the gabled roof across. Unusually, there are also two symmetrical chimneys at front. There is a skillion-roofed timber verandah. It is set in a mature garden, with several major deciduous trees and palm.

Intactness

Apparently, very good.

Physical Conditions

Apparently, excellent.
