Interpretation of Site	Garden remnants include several mature exotic trees; 20-c buildings now demolished. Ruins of a number of concrete, timber, besa brick, brick, tiled and corrugated iron roofed structures along the east boundary of the property. Possibly related to c1900 farm complex. A brick-lined well is present in the north-eastern part of site. This site was identified on 15 August 2011 during a survey of 28-40 Colemans Road. Due to the financial constraints of the sponsor, this site was not fully recorded and should be subject to further investigation should any works be likely to impact the site.
Archaeological Significance	Due to the poor integrity of the site, the archaeological significance of the 'Banyan Complex' is considered low; however, further investigations are warranted to make a full assessment.
Historical Significance	Due to the poor integrity and brief opportunity to record the site, the historical significance of the 'Banyan Complex' is considered unknown; however, further investigations are warranted to make a full assessment.
