Memorial Window Description & History

This, the right hand light of the three-light window, was designed with a Cross at the top of the low arch, above badges of the Royal Australian Navy and the Womens' Royal Australian Navy. Below was the St. John of God Cross with an anchor at either side, and then, side by side, the insignia of the RAN Naval Nursing Service ('Devoted to Service') and RAN Health Service ('By Constant Care'), reinforced with the small images of the winged staff entwined with twin serpents, commonly used to denote the medical professions. The artist, Commodore Dacre Smyth, explained the memorial as follows: 'In the first hundred years of the Australian Navy's existence, over three thousand men and women served in its medical, dental and nursing services. Their service is our heritage.'
