Memorial Window Description & History

Made in the same simple style as all the other aisle windows, the small emblem in this window was a descending dove (Holy Spirit), with the single word 'Love' below and a star and moon at either side of the dove. The floral border appears to be a climbing rose and with the badge of the RAAF was set into the base panel. On Sunday 1 April 1951, another pair of windows in honour of Lieutenant Noel Learmonth and his brother, Wing Commander Charles Learmonth, was unveiled by the Headmaster, JR Darling, at St. James' Anglican Church, Tyrendarra, near Portland. (See separate entry)

Wing Commander Learmonth was killed while air training over Rottnest Island, WA on 6 January 1944. Well aware that his Beaufort aircraft was about to crash he continued to radio information on the aeroplane's performance that resulted in crucial changes being made to the aircraft and consequently other lives were saved. He joined the RAAF as a Cadet in 1938 and graduated from Point Cook in 1939. After an initial posting in Western Australia he went to New Guinea with the Boston Bombers and was awarded the DFC for his efficiency and skill in leading a formation that bombed and sank a destroyer during the Bismarck Sea battle. The squadron was heavily involved in low-level bombing in New Guinea, for which he received a Bar to his DFC. After a distinguished stint in New Guinea, in October 1943 he was posted to command of 14 Squadron, Western Australia.
