Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

Architecturally, a skillful design which uses eclectic detail, massing siting and form to create a highly successful building which is enhanced by its surrounding streetscape and topography: of state, national importance. Historically, the first of a series of major public buildings sited in the post-gold growth centre of Flemington: of local importance.

Physical Description 1

Taking full advantage of the corner site, the massing of the building is stepped in a picturesque manner back from a spired pentagonal corner tower. Medieval forms and detail abound, with the brick construction, deep corbel table which encircles the eaves line as if for fortress machicolations and the spire and towered form itself resembling some large French house of the 15th century (see Hotel Jacques Coeur, Bourges) or a Medieval church. The tall Mansard roof once with a window's walk is another, if later, French reference. Trefoil windows at selected locations around the building were once reflected in a fanciful porch at the north-west corner of the building.

Integrity

The stucco has been painted; the widow's walk has gone; and the porch altered.

Physical Description 2

Streetscape

Visible from Racecourse Road, central to the frame created by the commercial development adjoining Wellington Street; relates closely to the Court house and police station on the next oblique corner north; and is the centrepiece of two notable streetscapes, Wellington and Shields Streets.
