Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

12 Mercer Road is of regional significance as an integral part of a group of three which possess distinctive mediaeval character and restrained detailing that set these buildings apart from the prevailing fashions. It is also significant as one of a group of houses constructed by one of Australia's most famous mining magnates.

Physical Description 1

These houses were designed in an eclectic manner with a mediaeval character to the gable facing the street which has a secondary projecting hip roof over a window bay. The mediaeval character was probably reinforced by the entry gablet on the verandah with wooden fretwork. They may have borrowed this detail from Sir George Verdon's hill station, Alton at Mt Macedon which was influenced by Verdon's association with leading English Architects. The steep pitched roofs, tall chimneys and the lack of stucco ornamentation on these red face brickwork buildings represents a rejection of the Italianate and the more flamboyant Queen Anne styles. The plan form, however, with two projecting bays containing a return verandah is not uncommon for the period. 12 Mercer Road has apparently been modified with Edwardian details to the verandah including the removal of the gablet, the modernising of the gable barge boards and presumed removal of the finial. The picket fence is based on the general design of the two matching houses to the north. In most respects, this house is intact.
