Statement of Significance

Last updated on - May 31, 1999

The site has a number of features which, according to local information, belong to a turn-of-the-century commercial operation to mine and process ochre. No primary historical information has so far been found for this site. The archaeological remains - burnt clay lumps, Chilean mill, drains, pits, dumps of ground ochre, and ochre mines (six shafts) - support the local interpretation for the site. The lack of diagnostic 1930s artefacts also helps place the site around the suggested date.

The Blind Creek Ochre Mine and Processing Site is of historical, archaeological and scientific importance to the State of Victoria.

The Blind Creek Ochre Mine and Processing Site is historically and scientifically important as the State's only known example of a rare type of mining. The mineral processing plant is also a very rare artefact, being only one of small number of surviving example of Chilean mills in the State – three quarters of the others being at a historic gold mine at Costerfield and at the site of an early brickworks near Rushworth.

The Blind Creek Ochre Mine and Processing Site is archaeologically important for its integrity and potential to yield artefacts on a hitherto unknown aspect of the State's post-settlement mining industry.

Permit Exemptions

General Exemptions:

General exemptions apply to all places and objects included in the Victorian Heritage Register (VHR). General exemptions have been designed to allow everyday activities, maintenance and changes to your property, which don't harm its cultural heritage significance, to proceed without the need to obtain approvals under the Heritage Act 2017.

Places of worship: In some circumstances, you can alter a place of worship to accommodate religious practices without a permit, but you must notify the Executive Director of Heritage Victoria before you start the works or activities at least 20 business days before the works or activities are to commence.

Subdivision/consolidation: Permit exemptions exist for some subdivisions and consolidations. If the subdivision or consolidation is in accordance with a planning permit granted under Part 4 of the Planning and Environment Act 1987 and the application for the planning permit was referred to the Executive Director of Heritage Victoria as a determining referral authority, a permit is not required.

Specific exemptions may also apply to your registered place or object. If applicable, these are listed below. Specific exemptions are tailored to the conservation and management needs of an individual registered place or object and set out works and activities that are exempt from the requirements of a permit. Specific exemptions prevail if they conflict with general exemptions.

Find out more about heritage permit exemptions here.

Specific Exemptions:

EXEMPTIONS FROM PERMITS:

(Classes of works or activities which may be undertaken without a permit under Part 4 of the Heritage Act 1995)

No permits are required for the following classes of works provided they are carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Conservation-Management
