Statement of Significance

Last updated on - February 14, 2005

Homestead: An old homestead complex incorporating a picturesque example of Scots baronial design in the two storey section which was designed by Thomas M. Taylor and built in 1859. Several other aspects of the homestead are of importance including the spiral in the western turret and the billiard room. The earliest part of the homestead dates from about 1849. Classification only applies to the block of stone buildings. (Heritage Victoria H0200)

Gatehouse: A rendered bluestone gatehouse built in 1859, the crow stepped gables showing Scottish influence. (Heritage Victoria H1947)

Classification applies to the block of stone buildings only.
Classified: 29/07/1959
