Statement of Significance

Last updated on - June 16, 2008

Horticultural Value:

A tree of horticultural or genetic value and could be an important source of propagating stock.

Rare or Localised:

A tree of a species or variety that is rare or of very localised distribution.

A very attractive shrub which produces orange flowers rather than the normal cream to white. Flowers are small and very fragrant. The plant is the only known specimen in Victoria which is thought to occur naturally in East Asia. The tree is in good condition and is a plant worthy of much wider cultivation.
